Ways to Play

Below are ideas to inspire play.

1. Label and Find

Teach little ones how to describe objects and recognize an object's unique characteristics by having them find and insert blocks based on different descriptors, for example:

Can you find the block with a yellow banana on it?

Can you find a block that is blue?

Can you find a block with a curve, like this [show a block with a curve]?

2. Use Spatial Language

Help little ones develop spatial reasoning skills and spatial vocabulary by using words and phrases to describe where the blocks are in relation to the sorter and other blocks, for example:

You put the blueberry block in the apple sorter!

Let's take all the blocks out.

Can you turn that block so the pointy part goes up?

3. Compare Shapes

With 10 unique shapes, little ones can look at two or more blocks and observe their similarities and differences. Point out the sides, curves, and corners of each block to bring their attention to the attributes of different shapes.

4. Encourage Imagination

Encourage little ones to think creatively by turning shape sorting into a pretend-play game. For example, pretend the shape sorter is a blender and insert the fruit blocks to make a smoothie. Press the stem to blend it up and add in more fruit blocks.
